Global

Global insured losses from natural disaster events in 2025 reached $127 billion, marking the sixth consecutive year that insurance payouts have exceeded the $100 billion threshold. Global economic losses from natural disasters reached $260 billion in 2025, marking the lowest level recorded since 2015.

India

India's insurance market is poised for a period of robust growth, outpacing other major markets over the next five years. Forecasted annual premium growth of 6.9% between 2026 and 2030 will position India as the fastest-growing major insurance market worldwide.

Greenland

The Greenland issue runs deeper than tariffs. Trade measures, retaliation, and diplomatic escalation often surface as insured losses in areas such as contract frustration, project delays, political violence & supply chain disruption. Political risk already sits near the
